No. 3.

Rev. J. F. Loba, D. D., of Kalamazoo, Mich., has accepted the invitation of the Board in Paris to become Dr. McAll's helper, and expects to arrive in that city with his family about the first of September.

A native of Switzerland, for five years a successful and much-loved pastor of a large church in Kalamazoo, Dr. Loba seems eminently qualified to take up the important work to which he is called.

Postponement of proposed Conference in Paris.

Owing to the difficulty which many friends find in being in Paris so early in the summer as the first week in June, it has been decided by the Committee of Direction to postpone the proposed Conference of friends and supporters of the McAll Mission till the month of September or October.

Due notice of the date fixed will be given.

R. W. McALL.

12 May, 1891.

Dr. and Mrs. Parkhurst sailed June 10 for Europe. They were to proceed at once to Paris that they might meet Dr. and Mrs. McAll and their associates before the summer vacation, and have an opportunity of visiting with them the halls of the Mission.

Upon their return, in the early autumn, Mrs. Parkhurst will enter actively upon her new duties as President of the Association.

We quote from a recent letter received from Dr. McAll :

“With what interest I read your kind letter with its cheering details respecting the Missionary Boat, etc. I believe that we shall now be able to obtain the ship, though I had almost despaired before. With what is promised from the Association I think we have assured to us half the cost, and we are trying to plead strongly in England for further help.”

Are there not yet others of the Association who, after reading of what was done at the annual meeting, will be glad to have a share in the boat ?

Contributions may be sent to Miss Caroline Remington, Assistant Treasurer, 1710 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

We regret to have to announce in the RECORD for this quarter the loss which the American McAll Association has sustained in the resignation of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Bracq, its efficient and valued Secretaries. Impaired health makes it necessary for them to seek a change and a respite from the arduous work of past years. We could ask no more for them than that their efforts in a new field may be crowned with the success and appreciation which has followed them in their labors for the Mission, and trust that their prayers and sympathy in the work may be continued to it although their connection with it is outwardly severed.

The Secretary of the Board was requested to send this Minute to the RECORD.

Secretary pro tem.

EIGHTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE
AMERICAN McALL ASSOCIATION,

HELD IN THE
SECOND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CLEVELAND, OHIO,
April 22 and 23, 1891.

PROCEEDINGS.

Wednesday morning.

The delegates assembled at 10 o'clock, and the meeting opened by a devotional service led by Mrs. S. E. Adams of Cleveland. At 10.30, the morning session was called to order by Mrs. Charles H. Parkhurst, of New York, who, in the absence of the President, had been appointed to preside.

After singing and responsive Scripture reading, Mrs. Parkhurst offered prayer.

Mrs. James A. Garfield, President of the Cleveland Auxiliary, read the address of welcome as follows :

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Mrs. President and Ladies of the Association :

The coming of a new spring-tide brings again a meeting of the McAll Association in its Annual National Convention.

The records of former meetings, and reports received from time to time from other auxiliaries have brought information concerning the magnitude and importance of this work, and the words that come to us from the Mission field have been most encouraging and inspiring ; but there is in personal presence a magnetism that written words fail to bring, and these annual meetings are of especial value in giving opportunity for social intercourse as well as public discussion of the great common interest.

Through the West, as well as in the East, many auxiliaries have already sprung into life, and it is most gratifying to the ladies of the Cleveland Auxiliary that the Convention this year has been appointed to meet in this more western city.

Of this work, of its origin, of its aims, of its growth and practical results a more definite knowledge is continually spreading. All denominations of Christians, all good people find here a field for united effort, and to each has come a great good in the lesson of tolerance and loving kindness. Encouraged by what has been accomplished in the past, confident of larger success in the future, and with most earnest hope that the present occasion may give new strength to the workers, both at home and abroad, and a new impetus to the work, the ladies of Cleveland extend to the delegates and friends assembled a most cordial welcome.

RESPONSE BY MRS. PARKHURST.

Madam President and Ladies of the Cleveland Auxiliary:

In the name of the members of the American McAll Association I thank you for your kindly welcome to us, and trust that the loving care with which you have prepared for our reception may be blessed unto us all, and the ultimate end for which we gather, the increase and extension of our beloved McAll Association, be attained.

May all our counsels be dominated by love for, and belief in the work, and may all those gathered here be so governed by zeal for this work in France that new wisdom shall come to us and a great love for souls take possession of us, so that as we separate we can each feel that it has been good for us to be here.

The following committees were appointed by the chair :

Devotional Committee, Mrs. S. E. Adams, of Cleveland, chairman ; Committee on Resolutions, Mrs. P. H. Hitchcock, Cleveland, chairman ; Committee on Enrollment, Mrs. J. H. Morley, Cleveland, chairman.

Miss Remington, of Philadelphia, read the letter of salutation from Dr. McAll, which was followed by a short one in which he invited all members of the Association who may be in Paris in June to attend the Annual Consultative Conference of the Mission.

The following ladies, representing other Boards, were appointed visiting delegates : Mrs. J. G. Frazer, Congregational, Home and Foreign Missions ; Miss S. E. Fitch, W. C. A. ; Mrs. E. R. Perkins, Synodical Home Missionary Society, of Ohio ; Mrs. B. F. Powers, Board of Missions, Disciples Church ; Mrs. S. D. Scofield, Woman's Missionary Society, Baptist Church ; Miss E. H. Huntington, Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Presbyterian Church ; Mrs. H. A. Griffin, Home and Foreign Missionary Society, M. E. Church ; Mrs. Balt, Missionary Society, P. E. Church.

Mrs. Adams welcomed these ladies in the name of the Convention, after which brief addresses were made by Mrs. Frazer, Mrs. Powers, Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Scofield.

Rev. Martin L. Berger, D. D., former Representative Secretary of the Association, was then introduced and addressed the meeting.

Adjourned to 2.30 P. M.

Wednesday afternoon.

The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Wistar Morris, of Philadelphia. The afternoon session opened with singing and Scripture reading ; Rev. J. C. Bracq offered prayer. The Representative Secretary's report was read, followed by the reading, by Miss Van Norden, of New York, of a paper by Mrs. Louise Seymour Houghton on "The Benevolences of French Protestantism."

The reading of the reports from Auxiliaries occupied the remainder of the morning. Adjourned to 8 o'clock.

Wednesday evening.

The public meeting was held in the auditorium of the church. Rev. Charles Pomeroy, D. D., pastor of the church, presided. Rev. Paul Sulphen, pastor of the Woodland Avenue Presbyterian Church, read the Scriptures, and Rev. J. D. Williamson, of Beckwith Presbyterian Church, offered prayer. Dr. Pomeroy, before introducing the speakers of the evening, spoke enthusiastically of the work of the Mission in a few well-chosen words.

After the reading of the letter of salutation from Dr. McAll by Dr. Berger, President Thwing, of Adelbert College, Cleveland, was introduced as the first speaker, he was followed by Rev. Jean F. Loba, D. D., of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Thursday morning.

The devotional meeting was led by Mrs. Parkhurst. The morning session was opened by the usual exercises ; Rev. Dr. Loba offered prayer.

Reading of General Secretary's report.

Owing to the absence of Mr. B. F. Jacobs, who was, on account of illness, unable to fill his appointment, Dr. Loba was asked to address the meeting. He spoke for forty minutes to an interested audience. He was followed by Mr. Bracq.

The Question Box was then opened. The first question, "What shall we do for the Mission Boat?" proved to be of so great interest that it was the only one presented during the morning. A clergyman of Cleveland responded as follows:

“I do not know of any way of getting this thing settled unless we put our hands into our pockets, and when we get it started people will help us. Something ought to be done here and now, and I will give $50.00.” This pledge was followed by others until $1,035 were declared subscribed towards the building of a Mission Boat for the McAll Mission.

Thursday afternoon.

The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Higbee, of Cleveland. Mrs. Johnson, of Oberlin College, was present and presented the greeting of seven hundred pupils under her charge.

The afternoon session opened at 2.30. First on the programme was the continued reading of the questions taken from the Question Box. The first was, “What can be done to aid Dr. McAll in some of his duties, and thus spare his life to the Mission?” This question called forth the earnest expression from many of the hope that Dr. Loba might decide to accept the invitation of the Paris Board and go to the assistance of Dr. McAll.

The next question was, “Are the Sunday-schools of the United States interested in the Sunday-schools of Paris?” Mr. Bracq replied by stating in detail the scheme, already in successful practice, of Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, whereby it is proposed to raise, in sums of $25, $5,000 for the Sunday-schools of the Mission through the efforts of the International Sunday-school Convention. Miss Remington stated that annual contributions are received from Sunday-schools in different parts of the country.

The answer to the question, “Do the wealthy men of Paris assist the Mission?” called forth the following statement:

“There are many wealthy men in Paris who do not know anything about the McAll Mission, and if they did they would not care anything about it. A Roman Catholic or skeptic does not interest himself in the McAll Mission. There are men of wealth who interest themselves in the Mission, although they are not religious, on account of the influence it exerts over their workmen. The number of wealthy Protestants in Paris is very limited, but the Protestants of France subscribe annually $1,000,000 to Christ's work, a fair proportion of which is given to the McAll Mission."

Q. "Is it wise to make managers' meetings simply business meetings?"

Ans. "We tried different ways and finally decided that we would make our managers' meetings public ones, and hold our business meeting either just before or just after. We have done this for over a year and had great success."

Ans. "We meet eight or nine times in the course of the year; we send postal cards announcing every meeting to the members, about ninety. If any question comes up for discussion we discuss it in private, but it comes finally before the public meeting. We have had some very enthusiastic meetings."

Ans. "We have our meetings, and invite outsiders; we think the work ought to interest everybody. If we have any business on hand we bring it before the managers' meeting, which is not private."

Q. "What is the effect of perepetetic meetings?"

Ans. "We hold our meetings first in one parlor and then in another. We find we cannot hold public meetings in any other way."

Q. "Is it wise, in a large city like Boston, to change the locality of the meeting?"

Ans. "In New York we should have much difficulty in moving our reports around, so we always hold our meetings in the same place."

Ans. "In Philadelphia we hold our meetings in one place. I do not know whether our memories are less retentive, but I do not believe our ladies would remember the place of meeting if it were constantly changed."

The reading of the Treasurer's Report by Miss Remington followed.

The report of the Nominating Committee was called for, read and accepted. Mrs. Charles H. Parkhurst, of New York, was unanimously elected President in place of Mrs. Mariné J. Chase. All other officers were re-elected.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions was as follows:

Resolved, That the letter of greeting sent by Dr. McAll to the Eighth Annual Meeting of the American Association, has been of great service in encouraging the workers and stimulating them to the undertaking of more and wider work for the future. We appreciate Dr. McAll's remembrance of us, for we know how overflowing full his days are.

We congratulate Dr. McAll upon what he has accomplished during the past year, especially upon his work among the children, and the success of the Missionary Boat. With him let us look forward to yet greater blessings and a much more abundant harvest in the coming year.

Resolved, That upon the retirement of our former President, Mrs. Mariné J. Chase, we desire to express our sincere appreciation of her faithful services in the interests of the Association since its organization. For eight years Mrs. Chase has been closely identified with the work of the Association; for the first year as the Executive Secretary, and for the past seven years as its President. She has contributed largely to the success of the work in this country, giving unsparingly of both her strength and time.

We earnestly hope that for many years to come she may be spared to continue her interest in and labors for the McAll Mission in France.

Resolved, That we deeply appreciate and heartily thank Mrs. Charles H. Parkhurst for her wise direction of our convention, and her successful efforts in making all the meetings both enjoyable and profitable for every delegate, and all who have had the privilege of attending them.

Resolved, That we warmly thank our General Secretary, Mrs. J. C. Bracq, and our Representative Secretary, Rev. J. C. Bracq, for their ever zealous and most successful endeavors to increase the interest and work of the present Auxiliaries, and to constantly start new centres of work. Their reports have added much to the interest of the meetings of the convention.

We cordially thank Mrs. L. S. Houghton both for her carefully prepared and interesting paper, entitled "The Benevolences of French Protestantism," which was read at the Wednesday afternoon session of the annual meeting, and also for her editorials in THE RECORD.

Resolved, That realizing the great importance of the work, we rejoice at the action taken by the convention of raising as much money as possible for the Missionary Boat, and we are glad that we can immediately cable to Dr. McAll that already more than one thousand dollars have been pledged.

Resolved, That we are greatly indebted to the ladies of the Cleveland Auxiliary for their generous hospitality towards, and their delightful entertainment of the delegates to the convention.

We are also indebted to the Second Presbyterian Church of Cleveland for the use of their attractive Sunday-school rooms, church-parlors and main auditorium.

To Dr. Pomeroy, President Thwing, Dr. Loba and all who contributed to the success of the public meeting, we extend our cordial thanks.

Closing addresses were made by Mrs. Parkhurst and Dr. Berger.

LETTER OF SALUTATION.

TO THE EIGHTH ANNUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE AMERICAN McALL
ASSOCIATION AT CLEVELAND, OHIO, APRIL, 1891.

Dear Christian Friends :

Another year, the eighth in the history of your noble Association, has completed its round. Is it possible? we are ready to ask. Amidst our ceaseless activities here the months fly past like so many weeks, the days like so many hours! Well, we need not repine in view of the hasty current of our short life-time, when it is the urgency of the Master's business that seems so wondrously to speed its flight.

For us, who are called to administer and carry forward the great enterprise with this vast foreign city as our centre, the year has been marked by severe trials, but also by many encouragements. In addressing to you my accustomed annual greeting, I am moved to pass over in silence the former, because they are designed, doubtless, to make us more "meet for the Master's use." I would rather dwell on the gracious dealings which have overbalanced them.

The limitation of our resources, arising in great measure from the death, in rapid succession, of a whole series of our most generous supporters in England and Scotland, has strictly forbidden us, during the year, to enlarge our boundaries, though the calls to do so were never so urgent. A few interesting little stations have, however, been added; but only such as could be undertaken by means of reduction elsewhere, or which were provided for by special contributions. Thus the recently-formed Wilkes-Barre Auxiliary has enabled us to associate ourselves with the very promising evangelistic work in the historic city of Rheims, commencing with the new year.

It is surely significant that in 1890, without any addition to the accomodation provided, simply in the steady pursuit of the round of activities already organized, the following items of increase should appear in the statistics carefully prepared for our annual report :

Increase of aggregate attendance at our adult meetings in Paris (without reckoning the missionary ship), 70,051.

The same at our Sunday-school and juvenile meetings in Paris, 17,955.

Total increase for the year, including the provinces, at adult meetings, Sunday-school and the juvenile meetings, 115,849.

Surely these figures, representing our nineteenth year's campaign amidst gay and Christless Paris and throughout France, eloquently proclaim that the interest of the "old, old story" is ever new.

During the seven weeks' visit of the Missionary Boat, "le bon messenger," while it was moored in the Seine close beside the celebrated Pont de la Concorde, 23,500 persons in all came on board to the meetings, of which, usually, four were held every day. Persons of all classes thronged the cabin in quick succession, many of them being intelligent young men, very many, certainly, hearing the gospel for the first time in their lives. The daily newspaper press saved us all cost of advertising by inserting article after article intended to throw the movement into ridicule. Thus numbers who came evidently from mere curiosity, were seen to remain as serious listeners. The singing of the hymns, chiefly answering to those you love in America, gave, manifestly, great delight. We have good ground to believe that one and another were led to seek the Lord. When the meetings were ended, and the boat about to leave for Le Havre, Mr. Henry Cook, its owner, and our missionary, the Rev. C. R. Brown, had occasion to go from one marine office to another, to carry out some formalities. The distances were great, so they hired a small carriage and were directed from bureau to bureau, a wearisome round. When it was finished Mr. Brown asked the driver what extra payment was required for the many calls and long waiting. "Gentlemen," he said, his countenance brightening, "I will not receive one sou extra; it has been a pleasure and a privilege to conduct you. I and my son have attended the boat-meetings whenever we could, and have found great benefit there. I am only too happy to offer this little mark of my gratitude."

The wonderful success of this boat campaign at Paris, as well as in previous years at a series of French seaports, has rendered us very desirous to have a permanent boat, fitted to the great river and canal system which now runs throughout France, and by means of which hundreds of places could be visited in which, as yet, the gospel is never heard. A generous-hearted retired captain and his wife, members of the Society of Friends, have offered freely to give their life to this effort, bearing all their own costs. Careful estimates have been made for a vessel, the cabin of which could seat 120 to 150 persons. The cost could not be less, we fear, than $5,000. The yearly expense of working it, river dues and support of an evangelist included, could not be less than $1,000 to $1,200. We are making a special appeal for offerings in aid of this great movement, and, should the response enable us to carry it out, we shall hope for a great blessing.

Let me add what cannot fail to rejoice the hearts of the many friends in your Association who helped us, last year, for the expenses of the two temporary halls at the Exposition gates, that both have ceased to be temporary. The little congregation of residents gathered in the smaller one (Place du Trocadéro) led us to keep it open ever since. The larger one, Avenue Rapp, we had to relinquish when the Exposition closed, because we had a little hall on lease very near.

Thither we sought to transfer the resident congregation. All through the year it proved too small, the interest awakened during the "World's Fair" never died out. The lease ending with the new year, we were enabled, to our great joy, to hire anew, at a small rental, the fine room we had left. I shall not forget the re-opening evening, when I presided. The delight of the attendants was written on their countenances. Many of them were, that night, returning to the place where they had found the Saviour. One and another and another were pointed out to me by our dear lady workers as converts gathered during the Exposition. One intelligent man, a master carpenter, came up to me at the close and took my hand, or rather both hands, saying: "Sir, it was in this hall that, on such and such a night of October, 1889, I became a believer in Jesus Christ." The light of divine love beamed on his countenance as he spoke.

My letter has already gone beyond its usual limits, or I would gladly touch on our work among children and young people, which has made evident and great progress during the year. To this advance the beautiful series of large and small pictures, and the associated literature, furnished from America through Mr. B. F. Jacobs, have contributed in no small degree. From our Mission Branches in all corners of France, we have testimonies of this. Among our dear Mission children, the year has witnessed true conversions in very early years. While among the young people, we have had the joy of seeing many become, in their turn, devoted teachers. The little bands of the Young Woman's Christian Associations (or Christian Endeavor Societies), in a number of our schools, give great promise of the future.

I congratulate the Cleveland Auxiliary, with its greatly respected President, Mrs. Garfield, on their generous hospitality in receiving the Annual Assembly. The hall set apart to our Cleveland friends, "Salle Cleveland," Batignolles, Paris, is the scene of patient and much blessed work. In the past several remarkable conversions, especially those of three very intelligent men of superior position, have signalized the place. One of its remarkable features is the class of "dames ageés" (aged women), which meets weekly, nearly all the members being over seventy. Several of these venerable friends, who had found peace in their last years in Salle Cleveland, have recently gone to "be with Christ."

I cannot forget those of the Association, whom our Lord has called to himself—the amiable and devoted Miss Laura Sunderland, the sacredly zealous Mrs. Emily Meigs Ripley, who was fired with enthusiasm for winning France for Christ even amidst her very last suffering days, and other cherished names of those whose "works do follow them."

May you, beloved Christian friends, have much of the Divine presence in your midst, and return to your several homes with new zeal and devotion.

Yours in Christian affection,

R. W. McALL.

REPRESENTATIVE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[APRIL, 1890, to APRIL, 1891.]

The American McAll Association performs two functions in reference to the Auxiliaries, that of conservation and that of propagation. These are the two most important functions of life; and the life of the Association can be measured only in the degree of the performance of these functions. In the first, the Association strengthens the Auxiliaries by correspondence, by monthly letters, by the RECORD and by the visits of its representatives. In the second, the Auxiliaries, by contributing five per cent. of net receipts, and in other ways, aid the Association to spread the knowledge of the McAll Mission in homes and churches, thus preparing the way for the organization of new Auxiliaries. The highest practical wisdom of the Church of Christ is not only to work, but to set an ever-increasing number of others to work. If, as Novalis says, "It is certain that my conviction gains indefinitely the moment another soul believes in it," it is equally certain that the moment another Auxiliary shares our enthusiasm for the work in France, our own enthusiasm is increased and our possibilities enlarged. The Representative Secretary firmly believes that the Association should have a man exclusively at work in forming new Auxiliaries, not only for the sake of France, but, also, in view of the highest efficiency of the seventy-three that we have already. It is to us a melancholy fact that there is but one small Auxiliary west of Chicago, and St. Louis, and none south of Washington and Louisville. One, nay, two men, exclusively engaged in breaking up new ground would render valuable service. The needs of France demand it, the Auxiliaries of the Association need it.

During the last year the efforts of the Representative Secretary have been almost entirely absorbed in performing the first function, namely, that of strengthening rather than that of extending. Early in the year 1890 he intimated to the President of the Association the urgent need of one or two workers from the other side. Again, in the autumn, he repeated his entreaties, but when a request was sent to Paris it was too late to secure the men wanted. Accordingly, the best thing for him to do was to consecrate his whole energy to the existing Auxiliaries. He therefore visited all but three of those of New England and devoted the remainder of the year to those of the Middle States. In this work, he has received the co-operation of Rev. L. T. Chamberlain, D. D., who, with rare felicity and power, has addressed twelve Auxiliaries. Had he been able to do for all of our Auxiliaries what he did for those that had the privilege of listening to him, this would have been an unparalleled year of success for the Association. The Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., has also given us most efficient co-operation, with voice and pen, whose influence we cannot overrate. The General Secretary has often turned aside from the arduous duties of the Bureau to speak before Auxiliaries.

The heart of the Representative Secretary was cheered in his trip through New England by the sight of the enthusiasm and zeal of some of the officers. The perseverance of some of our friends is beyond commendation. It was his privilege to spend three Sundays with the churches of Newark where, in addition to the pledges of the Auxiliaries, friends have given one hundred and fifty dollars towards the Missionary Boat. He likewise devoted two Sundays to New Brunswick where the Auxiliary gained new life and assumed new pledges. Three Sundays were spent in Scranton where a new Auxiliary was organized. Wilkes-Barre has also joined our ranks. This Auxiliary has undertaken work in the city of Rheims. After two Sundays spent in Bridgeton, N. J., an Auxiliary was formed in that city. One may see that, if our work of conquest in new domains has been less extensive than in former years, something has, nevertheless, been done.

It is impossible to set forth in figures, or in formal statements, the extent and nature of the correspondence of the Secretary with pastors and officers, and with the workers in France to secure information from the field. These duties make large demands upon time and strength. He has preached during the year in eighty-four pulpits, spoken at fifteen church meetings, addressed twenty-nine Auxiliaries, seven Sunday-schools, six minister's meetings, and delivered three lectures, a total of one hundred and sixty-four addresses.

The Association with which we are connected is remarkable in one respect, it is a most Providential organization. It is of such a nature that no man or woman can arise and say,

“this is my work.” All the great movements of mankind that have been lasting have been collective. The American McAll Association has grown almost imperceptibly, though every year of its history witnesses some advance. The missionary interest of Dr. Hitchcock in Paris, the heroic consecration of Miss Beach, the enthusiastic perseverance of Dr. Chamberlain, the generosity of the late Dr. Isaac Lea and of his noble daughter in the use of their wealth, their home and their influence, the executive ability and devotion of Mrs. Mariné J. Chase, the valuable services rendered by Rev. Dr. Berger, the work of the General Secretary, the patient deliberations of the Board of Directors, the faithful services of the officers of our Auxiliaries, and the efforts of humble Christians all over the Union, have been so many impersonal elements in the making of our Association. The work is God’s, whose imperfect instruments we have all been. The human work sinks in our eyes to allow the divine to be manifest.

“It is an important fact in the nature of man, that he tends to reckon his own insight as final” says Carlyle. It is also one of the most insidious temptations of our nature to consider what we have done as the best that we can or could do. There is a danger with some of our Auxiliaries in the satisfaction which they seem to derive from their own achievements. It is right to be pleased with what we have done, as an incentive to do more. When we view the intensity of the religious conflict in Europe, the awful spectacle of nations armed to the utmost to destroy other nations, immorality assuming a scientific dress, and gross materialism wrapping itself in a most fascinating form,—when every where we see new opportunities and hear potent appeals, how can we be satisfied? Let us then rise to the seriousness of the hour, let us work with new zeal, new zest, new earnestness and a new hope of success, and with this hope let us exclaim with a great modern writer, “O hope, thou art to us all an indefeasible possession in this, God's world ; to the wise a sacred Constantine banner written on the eternal skies under which we shall conquer, for the battle itself is victory."

J. C. BRACQ.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[FROM APRIL 1, 1890, TO APRIL 1, 1891.]

There is a beautiful myth about the birds. God created them wingless. He gave them rich plumage and melodious voices, but they could not fly. Then he made wings and commanded them to take them up and carry them. At first the wings seemed heavy burdens, but, as the birds hugged them to their form, they grew and became pinions which enabled them to soar into cloudless day.

To accomplish his purposes in the land of France, God called into being the American McAll Association. Upon every member of this organization he laid duties—the duty of giving, of praying, of serving. In moments of discouragement, perhaps some of us have looked upon these duties as burdens. Ought we not, rather, to regard them as blessed privileges, as pinions upon which we may mount up as eagles, publishing peace to a waiting people?

In the year 1890 the Association has not risen much above the plane of the previous year. We have done but little more than hold our own, as the reports of the Treasurer and Representative Secretary will show. This is not due to any lack of zeal on the part of the Board or its officers, but, rather, to the fact that it has been deemed more expedient to "strengthen our stakes" than to "lengthen our cords," and the working force has not been sufficient to accomplish both. We presented an earnest appeal to the Board in Paris early in the winter to send us a speaker from the Mission, for three months, at least, but the right man did not seem to be available on short notice. We have reason to hope that, with the opening of the autumn campaign, or soon after, we may have the joy of welcoming one of the Paris pastors or McAll Missionaries to our shores whom we may send to each one of our Auxiliaries.

The stated meetings of the Board have been held regularly. No changes have been made in its membership. We were deprived, late in the autumn, of the presence of the President of the Association, who, by the advice of her physician, crossed the ocean to secure a change of climate. Mrs. John F. Keen, a director, has served the Board as chairman, with great devotion and ability since November 1. A change, which was one in name only, will be noted in the list of officers of the Association. Our Treasurer, Miss Frances Lea, was married on December 30, to Rev. L. T. Chamberlain, D. D., of Brooklyn. Dr. Chamberlain's devotion to the interests of the Association has grown with the years since the time when he sent Miss Elizabeth R. Beach from city to city as a herald of God's work in France. As in past years, we again gratefully acknowledge the valuable assistance he has rendered since he became more intimately associated with us. To our great regret, our Foreign Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. M. Longacre, who has served the Association most efficiently since its organization, has been compelled, on account of ill-health, to lay aside her duties. By request of the Board, the General Secretary will present, in connection with her own report, a report of the year's work in France.

During the year the swift-winged messenger of death has again invaded our ranks. Mrs. Emily Meigs Ripley, the indefatigable Secretary of the Indiana Auxiliary, whose motto was, "Anything honest for the McAll Mission," has been called to enter upon a higher and more lasting service. The following minute was adopted by the Board:

“Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take to himself our dear friend and co-worker, Mrs. Emily Meigs Ripley, Corresponding Secretary of the Indiana Auxiliary,

We desire to place on record our deep appreciation of her earnest and consecrated Christian life ; of her undaunted courage ; of the brilliancy of her word and pen ; of her activity and perseverance which knew no obstacle ; and of her never-failing zeal and enthusiasm for the work of the McAll Mission.

We desire to tender our sympathy to her family and the officers and members of the Indiana Auxiliary, praying that they may all be comforted in this great sorrow by the sustaining presence of Christ.”

Mrs. W. Howard Neff of the Cincinnati Auxiliary, and Mrs. R. H. Brown, vice-president of the Louisville Auxiliary, have passed away. These dear friends were devoted to the interests of the Association, and prayed and labored for the advancement of God’s kingdom in France.

In previous reports our friends have been made acquainted with the aims of the Association in respect to the department of literature. They are aware that we have never ceased to urge upon the Auxiliaries the importance of a generous use of the leaflets and pamphlets, and of the wide circulation of the RECORD. Our motto has ever been “Excelsior,” and this year we have arrived at the dignity of sending forth our first bound volume, “Fifine, a Story of the McAll Mission,” by Mrs. Louise Seymour Houghton. The first number of Vol. IX of the RECORD appeared with an attractive cover and three additional pages of reading matter, and now modestly seeks in its “new dress” a recognized place among the religious periodicals of the day. This change was made by special arrangement with the printer, without additional cost to the Association. One proof among many that we have the thanks of our readers is that we were obliged to print 500 more copies in April than in January, to meet the orders from Auxiliaries alone.

The publications for the year were as follows :

No. of copies of RECORD,	. . .	33,000
Fifine,	500
France for Christ,	2,000
Addresses,	6,500
The Needs of France,	2,000
Three Years' Retrospect,	2,000
French Children's Appeal,	2,000
Letter from Bishop Whipple,	2,000
The McAll Mission,	4,000
The Lost Children,	500
		<hr/>
Total number of publications,	54,500
Total number distributed,	18,773

As summaries of reports from Auxiliaries have been presented, and as the Representative Secretary has given a general account of what has been accomplished during the year, our usual survey of the field at home will be omitted.

Before turning from this review of the year's efforts to bring offerings into the Lord's treasury, to the vineyard across the sea where this treasure is transmuted into incorruptible crowns, we would suggest four words from the pen of another, as hints for the opening year. Let us endeavor to "hold" what we have gained, to "finish" what we have begun, to "seize" new opportunities, and to "forecast" wisely our work.

The nineteenth year in the history of the Mission has been one of holding rather than seizing, although there are many marked features of progress, many signs of promise in the record of 1890.

In the realm of possibilities for future years, we find nothing more hopeful than the visit of the Missionary Boat, the "Herald of Mercy," to the heart of Paris, in the months of May and June. 'This is the same good ship of which we have heard year after year, now on the coast of Normandy, now at some seaport of Brittany, but never did we expect to see it anchored at the Pont de la Concorde, nor to know that its cabin, which has witnessed many conversions among the fisher-folks, was crowded for seven weeks, four times a day, by Parisians, and they, for the most part, men. What a proof that the desire to listen to the gospel message, is indeed "wide-spread" in France! What possibilities would be opened up by the Mission with a floating chapel at command, which could be sent up river and canal, even to the most remote districts of France. We are happy to report that efforts are now being made to secure the funds necessary to construct such a vessel, one which shall be permanently connected with the Mission. We shall have at least a few planks in the boat, a contribution having been received from friends in Newark. We hope that America will not be behind England in this enterprise, where generous aid has been promised. Offers of gratuitous help in the service of the boat have been received from several friends.

Owing to the prospective diminution in the reliable receipts of the Mission for 1891, in consequence of a series of deaths in England among the largest contributors, amounting to over $5,000, the only extension undertaken during the year has been in the use of money sent especially for the purpose.

The reopening of Salle Avenue Rapp, so well known to us, has been a matter of rejoicing. "This room had become hallowed by many deeply solemn gatherings held in it during the Exposition months, and above all by the series of evident triumphs of the gospel signalized there." Our friends of the Worcester Auxiliary have come forward nobly and have assumed the support of the hall which will be known hereafter as "Salle Worcester." A few changes for the better have been made in the location of some of the Paris halls and one new one has been opened in the suburban town of Rueil. We note that in the provinces, work has been begun or extended either independently or in connection with the different religious societies of France, in Aurillac, Besançon, St. Quentin, Cannes, Montmorillon, Marles, Rennes, Avignon, Brest, and Rheims. Early in the spring of 1890 a new hall was opened at Bercy in Paris, which was to serve the double purpose of mission-hall and mission-church. The church, under the care of Rev. Charles H. Greig, is in a prosperous condition. Public worship is well attended, and there are various societies for young men and women already in full operation. Another mission church will be soon organized in connection with the Ledru Rollin hall. While we receive this news with joy, we are also thankful to know that many converts have been received during the year into the fellowship of existing evangelical churches, those nearest to the hall where they received the gospel. As a rule, the pastors of these neighboring churches are well known to the habitués of the halls, and are thus the better prepared to welcome and care for the new converts entrusted to them. In connection with the ingathering of converts spoken of in the Paris Report, is a most interesting account of the little station of Ste. Gemme, beyond St. Germain, which will be remembered as located in a hamlet where, when the work began, there was not a single Protestant. "Many of the inhabitants have avowed themselves Protestants, and regular worship has been established under the auspices of the Société Centrale d'Évangélisation. The poor people have made praiseworthy efforts towards meeting the expenses of worship. The sight of this little Christian community rising up where, until a few years ago, superstition and irreligion had complete sway, is strikingly suggestive of what could, by God's blessing, be accomplished through persevering efforts in hundreds of similar places."

Much blessing, both spiritual and temporal, has attended the work of the free dispensaries, of which there are three in Paris. Dr. Estrabaud, in his report for 1890, says: "Patients still flock to the dispensaries and are eager, not only to receive advice and medicine, but also to listen to the gospel. Indeed, there is a marked improvement in this respect. An increasing number of individual cases of blessing received has been noted. I have been much struck by observing that those who truly receive the gospel are first transformed, and then they are impelled to become witnesses, and to endeavor to spread the gospel around them. Among the patients is one woman, full of zeal, who loves to visit other patients. She carries the word of God to her neighbors, as the Bible readers do, but with this difference, that, as she cannot read, she makes them read it to her."

The great event of the year in Paris and the provinces, for those interested in the work among the young, is admitted by all to have been the introduction of the American pictures and picture cards, contributed through the efforts of Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, in connection with the International Sunday-school Convention. Doubtless the remarkable increase in the aggregate juvenile attendance, as reported by Dr. McAll (17,955 in Paris alone), is largely the result of the inspiration given to the teachers and pupils alike through these invaluable aids to Bible teaching. Mr. Greig says: "The most striking success of the year has been at Pantin, where the change of hall gave such scope to the persevering energy of the lady in charge of the schools and girls' classes, that the children's meetings literally overflowed into the streets, and had to be divided between two days, the boys filling the hall on Thursday, and the girls, on Tuesday. At Ménilmontant, the entire staff of teachers, except the teacher of the advanced girls' class, but including the superintendent, are common working people." He adds that either the superintendent or his principal monitor can give an address that no pastor need be ashamed of, and yet both of them have learned all they know at the Mission-school. Interesting reports have reached us through the year of work among the young in the provinces, but time forbids even a resumé of what has been accomplished. One note of encouragement, among many, comes from M. Dürreleman, our devoted missionary in Rochefort and La Rochelle. He says: "One Sunday afternoon, I met Mrs. T—— coming from church with her children. In the course of the conversation she said: 'I owe you very much; my feet are now turned from the pit; and believe me, even this child prays for you every day. He only says: 'Dear Lord, bless M. Dürreleman.'"

"If children are praying for us," said Melancthon, when he heard children praying for the cause of the reformation, 'Christ's cause must progress.'"

When we remember that all the youth of France must pass through the barracks, we recognize the importance of carrying the work of the Sunday-school a step farther in the establishment of the soldier's reading-room. Dr. McAll has not failed in this direction. For some time these rooms have been in successful operation in the provinces, but nothing was attempted in Paris until about fifteen months ago. Great encouragement was felt from the first in the fact that the prefecture was most favorably disposed to the work, the administration even refunded, in proof of their approbation, the taxes that had been already paid to the state. It is not known that this has ever been done for any similar institution. The attendance during the year has been gratifying. It is estimated that between 300 and 400 men have been brought directly under moral and religious influence. Some of them become so fond of the Bible, that they ask to be allowed to take it with them to read, and they often ask for letters of introduction to directors in the provinces, when they are removed from Paris, that they may have access to the soldiers' reading-room.

It is gratifying to know that temperance societies are springing up in France under the name of "La Croix Bleue." In many instances our halls have been put at the disposition of the members, and thus reclaimed drunkards are brought more directly under the influence of the gospel.

Almost the first words that meet our eyes in the nineteenth Annual Report of the Mission are these, "The door wider open than ever in France." We notice, also, that mention is made of two budgets, one realized, the other desired. When we remember the Exposition halls, the Missionary Boat and the Sunday-schools, do we not feel our hearts burn within us to go out from this meeting to labor and pray even more earnestly, that this second budget may be realized, while the door is still swinging backward?

EMMA W. BRACQ.

We regret that we have not yet received the annual statistical report from all the Auxiliaries and that, consequently, in several instances our summary is incomplete.

We publish this year for the first time the balance sheet of the Mission, taken from the Paris Report for 1890. Our readers will find these pages of great interest, and useful for reference.
